First introduced in 2000, the HDI Support Center Certification program is the only globally recognized program for the certification of support center quality. HDI Support Center Certification is designed to improve the effectiveness of the support services industry and support organizations by providing an industry standard that is recognized worldwide and an accompanying certification program. Evaluation is based on a set of activities, each with four levels of maturity to evaluate the support center. In order to become an HDI-Certified Support Center, a support center must achieve minimum scores as defined by the HDI International Standards Committee. “The CDI IT Solutions Enterprise Help Desk clearly exemplifies excellence in the eight core areas on which the HDI Support Center Certification program focuses – leadership, policy and strategy, people management, resources, process and procedure, people satisfaction, customer satisfaction, and performance results.” stated Ron Muns, founder and CEO, HDI.

“Receiving this award further demonstrates our commitment to delivering high value IT solutions and superior support center services,” said Mark Balawejder, Senior Vice President of Solutions Delivery for CDI IT Solutions. “We feel the well-educated and skilled workforce available to us in West Virginia has helped us achieve this recognition and we look forward to the continued growth and success of our Charleston-area office.”
