

Web Development

Web technologies have become an integral part of 21st century business. Whether used to build and nurture external relationships with partners, suppliers and clients or as an internal tool for collaboration and communication among your workforce, the ability to rapidly design, develop and test web applications can be a major differentiator in today's competitive marketplace.

Choosing the right technology partner for your web development needs can be confusing. There are thousands of resources that can write code, however, more than programming is required for the on-time, on-budget delivery of a customer-centric web application. In addition, many vendors will recommend a single packaged solution or methodology based on their own portfolio.

CDI is different. CDI provides a broad spectrum of web application design, development and testing services that are based on client's requirements, not a specific package we sell.

How We Deliver

We provide a customized, comprehensive solution based on our expertise in all elements of the web development process:

- Strategy. Our highly-skilled team of professionals leverage the latest advances in development, e-commerce, collaboration and web publishing technologies to create a multi-step, multi-year roadmap.
- Definition. CDI business analyst experts develop an accurate, prioritized and documented set of requirements, detail usage cases and provide support for any development methodology.
- Design. Our architecture experts utilize cutting-edge technologies to create an architecture that not only meets end-user requirements, but is also cost-effective and easy to service and support.
- Development. CDI has vast experience in a variety of development methodologies including Agile, Waterfall and Iterative and can provide expertise at all levels of application development.
- Testing. To ensure rapid application delivery, our Quality Assurance resources engage early and work in parallel with development to deliver high-quality applications on-time.

Whether it is overhauling your entire web presence or taking your internal collaboration to the next level, CDI is your ideal partner.
